

”These are quick, urgent measures making a big difference for the affected and for the insurance companies with lesser claims costs to reimburse.”

Jesper Boqvist,
Business Manager at the Swedish Fire Protection
Association

ABOUT THE SALVAGE ORGANISATION

The Swedish Fire Protection Association's Salvage Organisation bridges the gap arising after a rescue effort is conducted and before subsequent measures are deployed. As the Salvage Organisation becomes alerted via the rescue service and SOS Alarm, they're involved in accidents before insurance companies often know they've occurred. This way, salvage managers can act quickly and insurance companies can be involved in claims management early, saving policyholders, insurance companies and society billions of Swedish kronor every year.

- Salvage Organization has contracts with almost 100% of the Swedish market's non-life insurance companies
- 15 000 salvage operations are performed every year

THE EVERYDAY ACCIDENT

Acting early reduces the extent of the damage and the costs of remediation, restoration, and reconstruction. With help from the Salvage Organisation, the consequences from the accident can be reduced, enabling the affected to return to their everyday life as quickly as possible.

THE WORKPLACE ACCIDENT

Accidents in the workplace affect the production, causing enormous economic consequences. Salvage Organisation operates to save goods, equipment and furnishings, minimising damage to the premises and getting the business up and running as quickly as possible to not lose revenue.

A HELPING HAND

In the event of an accident, emotional and social support is essential. Salvage Organisation assists in making necessary decisions and can arrange replacement housing, food, clothing and medicines – everything an affected person may need at that point.

A SUSTAINABLE COOPERATION

Salvage Organisation operates to minimise an accident's consequences from an economic, social and environmental perspective. Our work contributes to sustainability, and a cohesive claims management chain.
